

The General Assembly kicked off the 2021-2022 biennial session on Wednesday, January 13th with opening day speeches, organizing and the approval of the rules that will be used throughout the session. Just like everything else in our world, this day was unlike previous first days as family and friends were not present and the usual celebratory mood was muted. The legislative complex is open to the public, but social distancing rules are in effect and temperature checks are required before entering the building. Masks are not required but were more common among legislators than in the spring and it appears that the leadership of both chambers are highly encouraging members to wear them.

Session was gaveled in for just one day and the next two weeks will be used to assign offices, organize committees and generally get all the procedural and housekeeping items taken care of before the real work begins. House Speaker Tim Moore also announced committee chairs as part of the opening day festivities. Notable shifts include Rep. Dean Arp's (R-Union) promotion as a one of the House's senior appropriation chairs, along with Reps. Donny Lambeth (R-Forsyth) and Jason Saine (R-Lincoln). In addition, Rep. John Torbett (R-Gaston) is shifting away from his long-time transportation leadership roles to co-chair the Education K-12 Committee with Rep. Hugh Blackwell (R-Burke). Rep. Kristin Baker (R-Cabarrus) and Rep. Wayne Sasser (R-Cabarrus, Rowan, Stanly) joined Rep. Larry Potts (R-Davidson) and Rep. Donna White (R-Johnston) as House Health Chairs. The Senate announced their committees and Chairs last week and Sen. Jim Perry (R-Lenoir, Wayne) and Sen. Jim Burgin (R-Harnett, Johnston, Lee) join Sen. Joyce Krawiec (R-Forsyth) as Senate Health chairs. The make-up of all the committees and the Chairs of each committee are listed below.

Legislators will return to start business on January 27th. Key dates on the legislative calendar include:

- March 11: Local bill filing deadline in the Senate
- March 25: Local bill filing deadline in the House
- April 6: Bill filing deadline in Senate for most bills
- April 20: House filing deadline for non-budget, non-finance bills
- April 27: House filing deadline for budget and finance-related bills
- May 13: Crossover deadline for bills to have passed either the House or Senate for consideration during the remainder of session

As they look forward to session, legislators noted that addressing the effects from COVID-19 will be a major focus, concentrating initially on federal relief funds passed at the end of last year. Lingering disagreements over Governor Cooper's use of emergency authority during the pandemic are likely to be another topic of discussion.

Legislative leaders have already stressed the importance of continuing supports for schools and to support student learning that has been impacted by COVID-19. Senator Berger has indicated his renewed commitment to changing the way North Carolina students learn to read. With a new State Superintendent of Public Instruction who appears committed to working with the State Board of Education, those efforts could gain traction. Speaker Moore and Senator Berger also gave a nod to the importance of early education and child care in a recent article. A new bipartisan, bicameral early childhood legislative caucus could boost those efforts.

Medicaid transformation will also be an important topic this year. Dave Richard, the state's deputy secretary for Medicaid, told legislators this week that NCDHHS is on schedule for the July 1st launch, saying "our commitment to you is that we're going to do everything possible." An online tool will launch January 25th that lists providers and the four pre-paid health plans (PHPs). Open enrollment will formally begin March 15th.

The closest race in North Carolina this election was for the position of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Paul Newby was elected by just over 400 votes and is our new Chief Justice. Upon being sworn into the position, Chief Justice Newby has made a number of changes at the Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC). Newby named Andrew Heath as the new director of AOC and has also made numerous staff changes. Justice Newby feels strongly that the Court system should be open and has issued a new order allowing courts to reopen.

And finally, I hope you will allow me a moment of personal privilege as I would be remiss if I did not mention the shocking and sad events that occurred in our Nation's capital last week. I am still in shock that this was happening in my country. A country that I love to my very core and a country of laws and due process that I am proud to support as an attorney. My hope is that these terrible scenes will serve to remind all of us not to take our democracy for granted and to remember that it is fragile and must be protected. It is our duty to educate ourselves and support those who will not only represent us but serve with integrity and a sense of duty to our country and the ideals of our founding fathers.
